This last year has seen some major changes for online marketers including heart-stopping drops in traffic patterns that have flowed along the same sure and steady channels for years. All of a sudden, tried-and-true old ways just aren't working. Search patterns are permanently changing, thanks to the alarming shift from computers to mobile devices last year (4 billion mobile users, compared to only 1 billion for computers). Social popularity and the traffic it brings. *It's not something you can manufacture. *It's not something you can fake. And only those who really understand a trending phenomenon can live it and be one of the leaders. What Do You Want to Be? An Internet Celebrity or Hangar On? Think that's over-dramatizing the importance of social web presence for you or your business? Well, think again. Even Google has woken up to the fact that small tips dropped on Facebook and Twitter can cause more buzz than any other method combined. Their world-dominating search algorithms are taking a back seat to Twitter, Digg, chat, MySpace and Facebook recommendations... and Scribd. PLRights!
