Since the internet is such an active place, people have found methods to deal with over-stimulation. One way of getting by is called receptive input filtering. This means that our wits will learn to filter the immense bulk of the contents coming at them. We the viewers, rapidly learn at some level to tell apart banner advertisements or anything that appears similar to a banner ad. We separate out most of the irrelevant interference but we also filter out a lot of the valuable messages. Interstitial ads, like TV advertisements make viewers a captive of the message. ..And How About The Interstitial Links Manager Being A Short URL Manager?
