Intra-day trading the Forex market is a tough business. The majority of intra-day traders lose money, and the reason for that is because of poor trading timing. Most of the traders think that following a successful system is enough to make money in Forex, but that's far from truth: you must have a successful system and you must trade it at the right market timing! The key-words here are volatility and momentum... If you have the momentum on your side you can successfully trade Forex in just two hours per day!
