If you're tired of Adsense, you may want to try this contextual advertising software for your website. Let's face it, if you use Adsense on your website, be prepared to follow strict guidelines. They have restrictions on where your traffic comes from, require your privacy policy to say certain things, and many times ban webmasters without even an explanation. If your ready to try an alternative, get this contextual advertising software. The contextual advertising software is relatively easy to implement. In this software package it has a file/script that you simply upload to the cgi-bin directory. Then... With the contextual advertising software you type in keywords you want to use and affiliate link you want it to direct to. The contextual advertising software will generate a java script code that you cut and paste into your website, just like with adsense. With the affiliate programs you choose specifically for your website should make much more than Adsense, and you have full control over managing your website. Don't let Adsense dictate to you how to run your website, get the contextual advertising software today! Tags: advertising software
