Are you tired of worrying about the legal aspects of your business? -Do you wonder if youre protecting yourself and your clients enough? -Do you feel like youre just playing guessing games when it comes to legal matters? -Are you crossing your fingers that things will just wind up over the table rather than under it? -Would you like to know the best way to set up your web-based business -- legally? -If the answer to ANY of these questions is YES, then keep reading -No matter who you are and what your business, there is a solution. -Legal issues can be tough to manage but there are answers.

From: Your Name Here Tuesday 11:06 AM Dear Friend, If youre reading this, youve been specially selected to receive this message. Why? Because you either have a web-based business or you are looking to start one. Either way, this means that youre a creative, task-focused netpreneur, one of the fastest-growing careers out there right now. Being a netpreneur is a great way to harness the power of the Internet to provide yourself with a rewarding, profitable career and the mere fact that youve entered the business means that youve come to realize the incredible power that the Internet can have on your bottom line. There are incredible opportunities to make money on the Internet from home, but until now Youve Been Asking Yourself How To Set Up Your Business In A Way That Protects You and Your Clients In the conventional business world, no start-up is complete without the help of a high-priced attorney. This rather expensive form of hired help is necessary to ensure that the new business is completely legal: no business wants to deal with the inauspicious start of under-the-table shadiness. With the explosion of home-based Internet businesses, however, netpreneurs are finding that a highly successful business can be run right out of a spare bedroom. And unless youve got some secrets your neighbors dont know about, you probably dont have a knowledgeable attorney sitting in that spare bedroom. On one hand, this is great: it takes a huge wad of expenses off the table from the very start. On the other hand, however, it leaves you in a bind: how can you keep everything legal without professional help? You want to avoid making costly blunders, but its difficult to know where to start. One of the fastest ways to sink a fledgling business is to get into a legal bind. In order to ensure the success of your business, you need to take pains to avoid the legal pitfalls that have felled so many before you. This means being smart and on top of all the possibilities, situations, and remedies. So how do these courageous, confident businesspeople (the ones who DONT get into major trouble with the FTC) set up an effective business model? And how do they wade through the huge number of laws surrounding business? How do they make these laws work for them while still protecting their liability and their clients? And, more importantly, how can you make those laws work for YOU? The Truth Is That You CAN Make These Laws Work In Your Favor, And We Will Show You Exactly How To Do It! Even though the U.S. is a very pro-business environment, the simple fact of the matter is that the law frequently sides with the customer. It goes without saying that the customer needs plenty of protection. Its your responsibility as a business owner to stay on top of legal requirements in order to protect your customers and, in turn, yourself. As a business owner, this is your responsibility: Everything you do must be within federal limitations in order to ensure fair business practices and avoid any and all possible legal retaliation that could put your business . . . well, out of business. When it comes to the Internet, the Federal Trade Commission, or FTC, is constantly trying to keep up with advances in technology. The Internet represents an exponential growth factor for advertising and businesses of all types. Because of this, it can start to seem that your business is under siege: its easy to feel like youre being attacked from all manner of legal angles in rather unfair ways. The truth is, however, that the FTC should be your friend rather than your foe. If you manage to keep your business entirely above water, youll have nothing to fear from the FTC and truly savvy business owners learn to make FTC regulations and rulings work to their advantage. Plus, this means that your customers will always be dealing with a business that is fair and equitable to their needs and thats the kind of business decision that will only serve to boost your business. In order to stay on top of your game and make money in this complicated legal world, you need insider information, like the answers to these questions: *

Should I set up my business as a limited liability company or a sole proprietorship? * How do I know when its time to incorporate? * Is it true that Nevada doesnt exchange information with the IRS? * What states are the best for my business to be legally based in? Sound like Greek to you? If so, youre a great candidate for the advice and information in this book, all of which is aimed at Internet entrepreneurs like YOU who need a little expert advice to supplement the great business smarts you were born with. Plus, not only will you get the BEST advice about where and how to set up your business, but you'll get BONUS information: * Easy and Legal Ways to Deduct 100 of Your Annual Medical Expenses From Your Business Taxes * Making Money and Making a Difference: How to Set Up a Non-Profit Corporation * What States Are the Most Private, Most Business-Friendly (Hint: Almost 60 of all Fortune 500 companies are legally incorporated in a tiny East Coast state!) * How And Where to Go Offshore Here's a Great Example of the Kind of Information You'll Find in this Book! Read on for an EXCLUSIVE Sneak-Peek: From a Discussion on choosing between organization as an LLC or an S-Corporation: Whether you decide on an LLC or an S-Corporation really depends on a number of factors. You might ask yourself: * Does this business have a great deal of growth potential? Could I be sitting on top of the next Ebay or Amazon.com? * Am I providing goods or services that people run the risk of injury using? Could I be sued for damages arising from the use of my service or product? * Can I deal with large amounts of paperwork? Alternatively, am I willing to incur the expense of hiring a professional accountant? * Will I be conducting business outside of my home state? If your answer was no to all four, chances are the LLC entity will work just fine for your business. If, for instance, you operate a website that is a portal in other words, a collection of related links that websites pay you to maintain or advertise on because yours gets a great deal of traffic (examples would be Restaurantor RV.net), chances are small that you'll ever be sued unless you break some type of contractual agreement (and that would never happen to you, right?). On the other hand, if you answered yes to one or more of these, you should seriously consider forming an S-Corporation. Surprised by What you Just Read? If so, you're not alone. This is the kind of information many Internet businesspeople just don't have. The truth is that many individuals who have gone into business on the Internet don't have MBAs or any other kind of extensive business training. This is the American Dream at its fullest: anyone with a great idea and a lot of effort can make a go of it in the Internet business world. You don't need a fancy degree or major training. What you do need, however, is the level of smarts that allow you to seek out the information that you need from top to bottom. Shrewd businesspeople find out what they don't know and then figure out how to get to know it. Put yourself in that pack in the group of people who make smart business decisions by seeking out the unknown and turning it into the known. Why Pay a High-Priced Attorney AND Give Away Your Business Information? The Secrets to Protecting Your Business Are Right Here! As an Internet business, there is nothing stopping you from going out and hiring the best attorney in the area. In fact, I dare you to: I'm sure that you'll love the $400-per-hour fees, right? Truth be told, hiring an attorney could be the financial straw that breaks the back of your fledgling enterprise but functioning without legal advice can put you under faster than you can look around for a life jacket. Which is where this book - Using Corporate, Business and Advertising Law To Your Advantage - comes in. Additionally, managing your own legal remedies without the help of an in-person professional is a great way to safeguard the secrets of your business. The more people you involve in your process, the more, well, people you will let in on your process. If your ideas are good enough to be used to launch a new venture, then they are good enough to be kept in confidence. Don't ruin your new venture by letting the cat out of the bag to someone who is not emotionally invested in your success keep your secrets and methods to yourself by gaining the know-how you need in order to play by the rules. Using Corporate, Business And Advertising Law To Your Advantage is a book that will take you step-by-step through setting up a business that is legal, protected, and private. This book really shows the inside tips and secrets that the successful big operators use - things I would never have dreamed of before I got this book. My company is now on a sound legal footing and I am confident that the law is on our side. I could not have made a better investment in the success of my business. Tony Chiarenzo, Brooklyn, NY Feeling Overwhelmed? If so, youre not alone this represents a lot of information. If you were shocked and amazed by the above list of topics covered, then youre a good candidate for this book. This represents the range of topics about which a business owner has to be knowledgeable. Feel like consulting an attorney about each of these topics (start by thinking about how much it might cost you . . . )? Or perhaps do you feel like you might just want to take a stab at legally complying with each of these issues as a matter of chance? Didnt think so. With this tool at your disposal, youll avoid high legal fees while learning everything YOU need to know about using corporate, business, and advertising law to YOUR advantage when youre out there on the Internet. Still not convinced that this book is right for you? Heres a test . . . Can you name 5 Disadvantages of a Sole Proprietorship? This book can. Heres a FREE Preview: * Raising capital is more difficult, since you cannot sell shares of the company, and a Sole Proprietorship has a smaller degree of perceived legitimacy than a corporation or an LLC. * It is more difficult to secure bank financing. * Hiring of employees can be more of a problem. * You can be subject to both the Federal Tax Rate and a self-employment tax, effectively being subject to double taxation. * The biggie: UNLIMITED LIABILITY. This means that if your business is sued, your own personal assets are at risk. How about 5 BIG advantages of organizing your business as a Limited Liability Company (LLC)? * No board of directors or shareholder meetings are required; an LLC can consist of just one person. * An LLC is an enduring entity, usually separate from the member(s), and can be passed on, transferred or sold; fewer legal complications result should the owner unexpectedly die. * Administrative paperwork and recordkeeping is easier. * Your assets are separate from those of the business, therefore you are not liable for damages caused, or debts incurred by the LLC. * Taxation is typically on profits taken out by you, not on the LLC. You may however elect to be taxed as a sole proprietor, an S-Corp or a regular C- corporation; your tax advisor can determine what is best for your particular situation. Or what about 6 smart guidelines for ensuring that you're adhering to Clear and Conspicuous Disclosure? * Disclosures should be placed in reasonable proximity to the claim which it is qualifying * Disclosures should be reasonably prominent (easy to see); this refers not only to placement, but to font and choice of colors (high contrast between background and text colors) * Other elements of the advertisement should not distract from the disclosure * If the advertisement is lengthy, consider whether or not a disclosure bears repeating over multiple locations and even pages * If audio and/or video is used, disclosures should be audible, understandable, and in the case of video, appear long enough to be fully read and understood * Language used in disclosures should be targeted to the intended audience. For example, if your product or service is aimed at fans of monster truck rallies or the Atlanta Braves, chances are you won't want to use a lot of complex legal terms in any disclosure. If you weren't able to rattle off these lists on your own . . . If this information is a surprise to you . . . If you said, Well, I've never thought about it like that . . .
