Any time you go to a site or buy a product that is recommended to you by somebody else, youre experiencing the power of viral marketing. YouTube got so big because people would email their friends and family with a link to a video they liked so much that they wanted to share it. Facebook became the giant it is because of word of mouth people started signing up, finding old friends, and spreading the word on how cool it is. Wouldnt you like it if you could tap into that same huge traffic funnel and send it to your site instead? You could have the best site on the internet, designed by a graphics wizard, and offering the best product every produced by mankind... but it will sit there useless unless people know about it. Word of Mouth is Still King The internet has a population of 360 million, and its growing every day. The best way to get all of those eyeballs on your website is to have them spread the word themselves. How many times have you bought something, or read something, or watched something on TV because a friend or family member recommended it to you? Plenty of times I bet. And why do we do that? Because we trust their opinions. We say to ourselves well, if Bob went to this site and told me I'd be a fool if I didn't go, I should probably check it out. You've probably done the same thing yourself, and recommended a product or service that you were impressed with to a friend or a member of your family. This is viral traffic in action! You tell two friends, and they tell two friends, and so on and so on, until it spreads like wildfire. Now, imagine that instead of a close circle of friends telling each other about great products and services, you instead have communities of sites where thousands of people share what they find on the internet with other members. These members have grown to trust the recommendations made by other members, and so they tend to visit the sites that are posted in these communities. Imagine the sheer volume of traffic that these recommended sites receive! With the Non-Stop Viral Traffic program you will learn 21 proven techniques to tap into this huge traffic source, and send huge numbers of visitors to your website every single day!
