Getting traffic directly from the Search Engines is one of the best ways to get free targeted traffic to your websites. However, in order for your websites to be listed on the search engines for keywords that are relevant to your websites' contents, you need to make sure that your websites are being Search Engine Optimized. By this, I do not mean that you code your website in such a way that only the search engine bots can "understand" your website, and making it totally "alien" to your visitors (meaning your visitors are unable to comprehend what your website is about), nor should you use illegitimate methods such as keyword stuffing. Rather, you should make use of right Search Engine Optimization (also known as SEO for short) to optimize your websites in such a way that not only is it search engine "friendly", but also your visitors have no problem in figuring out what your websites are about.
