

my Personal Assistant Software*w/mmr-personal Ass. Does It

DOWNLOAD HERE

Your Own Personal Assistant Without Hiring ANYONE, Without Shelling Out Cash Continuously & Without Every Having To Worry About Quality Of Service! Is Support Eating Up Loads Of Your Time? If you spend more than 10 hours a week on support ore answering any kind of repetitive email from customers of any kind, you know how difficult it can be. 10 hours is actually quite conservative. Most of us (including me) have tons of support closer to the 40-60 hour a week range. This means that we spend so much time doing support, we dont have time to do anything else! If you are spending more time on support than you do actually growing your business, you know how frustrating it can be. As we all know, support comes with all online businesses but we never know how much support we will really get until we start making a few sales. Once some business starts rolling in, thats when the support e-mails start pouring in and stacking up. Its vital to keep these answered in a professional and high quality way so that customer loyalty and trust is kept strong. But the bad news is that... You May Have Customers That Down Right Hate You! I know that may sound a little bit rough but the harsh reality is that it may very well be true and you just dont know it. Think about this... When you get up and you start checking your e-mail and see that you have a ton of e-mail from customers for support, one of two things usually happen... 1) You ignore the requests for days and they start piling up making your customers think this joker doesnt care about me once he got my money. This piling up usually gets so overwhelming that you just dont do the support at all or (this leads into our next option)... 2) You start blazing through the e-mails at record speed and dont really give the attention to detail that you should to the customers which leaves people with unsolved problems, questions not answered and an overall feeling of a lack of care. Once a customer gets any treatment like this, you better believe that they are going to tell as many people as they can. Youve heard the adage treat someone right and theyll tell two friends, well the same type of adage goes for NOT giving a customer proper service but its much worse... Treat a customer bad and theyll tell 10 or more friends who will then do the same. Customers remember bad service and people remember when their friends tell them of a website or companys bad service and remember it. Why This Support

Nightmare Isn't Your Fault You see, when we get into business for ourselves and start getting customers coming in, were ecstatic, we bend over backward to support the first few customers that come in and do everything we can. Doesn't that sound accurate? But then business keeps growing and eventually we get to a point where we just can't handle the load of support and e-mail requests that are coming in.

Previously, I was spending 60+ hours a week doing support for my various products and services. This left no time for me to do anything in my business other than support and took me away from my friends and family. That's not why I started an online business! This isn't our fault but the fault of not foreseeing that support would eventually pass our ability to get it all done. Where The Secret Support Remedy Lies (No One Knows About This) The only option to remedy the support nightmare that we face as online business owners until now is to hire an employee and boy, none of us want to do this for many reasons...

1) Employees cost money and that takes money out of our pockets every month. 2) Employees need to be trained which takes time on top of you having to do support during the training period! 3) Employees usually never treat your customers the way that you would like them to be treated and leave out personal service in some cases. 4) If you lose an employee or worse; have to fire them because they can't do the job right, you have to find another employee, retrain them and go through the whole mess again.

Im sure that you'll agree that this is a huge mess and a vicious circle that you can never get out of because, let's face it, finding a winner in a worker and an hourly rate that makes you smile probably isn't going to happen. Great employees aren't cheap and cheap employees are never great. The good news is that you don't have to hire an employee due to something so special that I seriously considered not releasing it to the public...

You'll Laugh At Your Competitors As Their Customers Come Running To Your Because Of Your Superior Service Which Takes You 99 LESS Time Than The Competition! All Without A SINGLE Employee! * Cut Support Time By 99 INSTANTLY! * Create Lifelong, Loyal Customers Who Buy Everything You Release! * Start Spending Your Time How You Want To! Introducing... My Personal

Assistant This software is the most incredible creation in the history of support e-mail. You simply install it, and go about your day and as you do, the software automatically starts eliminating support e-mail. I know, this all sounds a little weird or hypey but it's absolutely accurate. You just go about your day as normal business as usual, only you make a few clicks here and there from time to time and the My Personal Assistant software starts learning your support system automatically! Does that sound great or what? Wouldn't You Like To Eliminate 99 Of The Time You Spend On Support?

DOWNLOAD HERE

Similar manuals:

50 PLR Articles: Virtual Assistants

Indispensable Information In Becoming A Virtual Assistant

My Personal Assistant

*My Personal Assistant Software*w/MMR-personal Ass. Does It

PLR Virtual Assistants Articles + Article Analyzer

The THREE Deadly Mistakes Virtual Assistants Make With Their Marketing