It's so easy to forget vaccinations and worming, which can have potentially disastrous consequences for our little furry friends. Equally important, but very easy to overlook is regular flea control. Anyone who's had a runaway flea infestation in their home will tell you that it's something they'd never want to experience again. Pet Medical Recorder is a simple to use software tool which will generate a set of special forms to allow you to keep track of all your pets medical and treatment information. It will keep records of vaccinations, worming and flea control, so you can see at a glance when the treatment needs repeating. It will also record details of any medicines that your pet needs to take, general medical history, vet contact details, immunizations and health insurance details.
