If you want to stop fantasizing about getting approved for a government grant and want to get serious about it, this letter is for you. Dear Friend, You and I have heard it all before, the man with the funny jacket on late night TV telling us that the United States government gives out over 30 Billion dollars in grants every year. And if we want any of that for ourselves, all we have to do is send him some money and all our money problems will be over. I dont know about you, but that sounds a little bit too good to be true. The truth goes something like this: while the US government does grant over 30 Billion dollars a year, you do not qualify to receive most of that money. Most of that 30 Billion goes to non profit organizations such as: County governments City or township governments Independent school districts State controlled institutions of higher education Native American tribal governments (Federally recognized) Nonprofits other than institutions of higher education [includes community action agencies and other organizations having a 501(c)(3) status with the IRS] Private institutions of higher education, State governments Now let me ask you, do you or your family fit any of the descriptions above? Not likely. Now I know this may sound like bad news, but its not! You now know the truth about federal grants: you dont qualify for most of them.
