Often, women are thought of as the weaker sex, unable to defend themselves effectively against a strong male attacker. Its this kind of thinking that hurt women. The truth is that women CAN and SHOULD fight back when they are threatened. It takes a lot of courage to fight back, though, and many myths exist regarding womens self-defense training. These myths include: You have to learn martial arts to defend yourself Theres no way you can over-power your attacker Just give in and let them have what they want If someone wants to get to you, they will no matter what you do All you need to know to defend yourself is how to fight All of these statements are, indeed, myths. There are many, many ways you can protect yourself from being compromised or assaulted. They dont necessarily involve martial arts, they dont require you to know how to fight, and they definitely dont require you to give in to your attacker. You Dont Have To Be A Victim!
