Cost per action CPA From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia Jump to: navigation, search Internet marketing Display advertising E-mail marketing E-mail marketing software Interactive advertising Social media optimization Web analytics Affiliate marketing Cost per action Contextual advertising Revenue sharing Search engine marketing Search engine optimization Pay per click advertising Paid inclusion Mobile advertising This box: view talk edit Cost Per Action or CPA (sometimes known as Pay Per Action or PPA) is an online advertising pricing model, where the advertiser pays for each specified action (a purchase, a form submission, and so on) linked to the advertisement. Direct response advertisers consider CPA the optimal way to buy online advertising, as an advertiser only pays for the ad when the desired action has occurred. An action can be a product being purchased, a form being filled, etc. (The desired action to be performed is determined by the advertiser.) Google incorporated this model into Google AdSense [1] but shut down the offering in June 2008[2]. eBay has recently announced a similar pricing called AdContext. The CPA can be determined by different factors, depending where the online advertising inventory is being purchased.
