Scott, who grew up in a Detroit suburb, began her singing career at her elementary school and from there became lead vocalist in the church choir; singing at a professional level by the tender age of 13. Scott started appearing in local clubs, attracting audiences everywhere she went. While performing with The Four Tops, she was discovered by a local production company who signed her to a contract. Her first record, "I Just Can't Forget That Boy," debuted while she was a freshman in high school. As a student of Wayne State University, Scott landed a job as a backup singer for her idol...Aretha Franklin. Their five state tour ended at New York's famed Carnegie Hall, and Scott vowed she would return someday as a headliner. This vow became a reality when she sang opposite Michael Henderson on their million-selling duet, "Take Me I'm Yours," on Budda/Arista Records. Scott left Detroit to accept an offer to entertain at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. Four months later she headed for California. Scott is a seasoned performer and a true professional who devotes her full energy to each new endeavor. In addition to performing live and recording albums, Ms. Scott was the national spokesperson for Harvey's Bristol Cream, and has also developed a successful career singing commercial jingles, movie soundtracks, and cartoon soundtracks. Immense talent, a passion for music, and an enthusiastic spirit have taken Rena Scott to great heights. Truly for this lady, the sky's the limit!
