Growing up in Visaliaan isolated, agricultural town between Fresno and Bakersfield in Californias Central Valley--Nik Freitas found solace in skateboarding, photography, and, of course, music. A self-taught musician able to play guitar, bass, drums, and piano, Nik started recording on a 4-track in his teens--creating fully-realized, fleshed-out songs completely on his own. This early music combined dexterous musicianship and solid pop-craftsmanship with a disarming emotional innocence. From the start his talent was immensely evident, and now, after two exceptional records (2002's Heres Laughing at You and 2003's Heavy Mellow) and thousands of miles touring with his band the Head Gates, Nik has proven himself an accomplished and confident artist. Niks music is steeped in classic, expansive pop records like David Bowies Hunky Dory or the Beatles' Let it Be, while also referencing more modern, indie rock records such as Built to Spill's There's Nothing Wrong with Love. Taking subtle cues from music's greats, both old and new, Nik cultivates a sturdy style that emphasizes the importance of melody and lyrics. His distinct voiceat once both self-assured and world-wearyinjects the songs with personality and passion. With such dedication to the craft, Nik Freitas channels his talent to become an inspired, engaging songwriter. -Mike Alexis download.com Nik currently resides in Los Angeles, CA playing solo and also with his band in and around the area. Record Reviews..... "On his second album, Nik Freitas builds off the singer/songwriter approach that fueled his well recieved 2002 debut 'Here's Laughing at You'.
