The traditional Spanish guitar performances of La Guitarra Romntica are packed with enthusiasm, passion and fire. 15 MP3 Songs JAZZ: Latin Jazz, LATIN: Salsa Details: Greetings. Thank you reviewing this beautiful latin music. La Guitarra Romntica consists of traditional acoustic guitar performances by two very fine Spanish guitarists, a very fine European bassist, and a Los Angeles-based world-class father and son latin percussion group. La Guitarra Romntica is dedicated to Charlie Molina, the woman who's photo is on the cover. By the way, did you notice her little dog, Nicki, in the photo? Charlie was born and raised in the mountainous forests of Costa Rica. I will share a brief story with you. While I was working on one of the songs, Charlie walked in the room and heard it. She immediately said, "The name of that song is La Espanola [The Spaniard]." I asked her why? Her reply was that, "in the latin culture, when a lovely latin woman walks into a room filled with latin men, and she is so elegant and lovely that they all turn their heads to look at her, the latin men refer to this woman as La Espanola [The Spaniard]." Of course, I named the song, La Espanola, as Charlie advised. Then, some months after the release of La Guitarra Romntica, I received an email from a very lovely woman who lives in Spain. She said, "Morton, you must be one of us." I asked her why she said this. Her reply was, "Well, there is this song on your CD that just makes my blood boil every time I hear it, because it turns me on!" I asked her which song is this? Her reply...La Espanola! So, There you have it. Charlie lovingly named each song in this collection, including the title. Charlie, thank you for your sensitivity. And, thank you, the listener. May you enjoy La Guitarra Romntica. Sincerely, Morton Davis
