Stacey has one of the most powerful, but not perfect voices in Australia. Her voice is her instrument. This album was created by one of Australia's most prestigious producers, Herm Kovak, who has never seen a voice track produced with one take. 12 MP3 Songs COUNTRY: Country Rock, COUNTRY: Country Blues Details: Stacey was born into a musical family. The youngest of seven children, her father Stan Ellis was a trumpet and piano player and songwriter, and mother Ruby a well known singer in Australia and England. Stacey inherited her mother's strong and emotive singing voice and from the age of four was a songstress and dancer, winning every talent quest she entered, and singing radio jingles. She began singing professionally at the age of 15. She has been a member of a number of rock bands, notably Stormy Monday during the eighties. Stacey ran the rock gauntlet spending many hours of many years touring around Australia and New Zealand. In 1996 she won the Australian Open Singing Championship and has come of age in terms of her choice of styles. Her musical influences are varied but include powerful vocalists from high voltage rock n roll, jazz and blues and new country, both male and female. Stacey loves Country Music - she likes the stories that go with the songs and the heart behind the lyrics. Stacey is a singer of the goose bump variety. There are a lot of good singers in Australia today, but good becomes great when Stacey takes centre stage. Stacey plays her audience as well as she sings. She builds a warm rapport with her gutsy sound, spontaneous repartee and wit and conveys a performer who really enjoys what she is doing. The emotion in her delivery tells tales of a life lived with a lot of pain and a lot of joy; Stacey has been in both places but that's her story to tell. Stacey's latest album Borders and Boundaries is the result of collaboration with Herm Kovac, well known and respected Country Music Producer. Officially launched in November 2004, since that time Stacey has had a number of significant milestones Nominated in 4 categories for the Tamworth Golden Guitar Awards Selected to be in the Top 10 by the judges for Best Female Vocalist.
