Walter Ferguson's second disc presents a renewed face of Costa Rica's most prolific calypsonian: good humor and small disasters, typical of Caribbean life. A delicious disc for all listeners to enjoy, laugh and forget their pains for a while. 14 MP3 Songs WORLD: World Traditions, FOLK: Traditional Folk Details: In his second disc, Mr. Gavitt dusted off several songs he had almost forgotten like Carolyne, One Pant Man and Bugaloo; he paid a homage to Jamaican traditional songs by including the piece 72 Weeds, the 72 weeds capable of curing any illness, if only you manage to pronounce all their names correctly, and he interprets a piece by Papa Houdini, old calypsonian who he considers his mentor. So, we unplugged the nearby refrigerators once again, begged the hotel guests to be quiet, asked the bus drivers and delivery truck drivers to turn off their engines and put up the mattresses in the studio/room. This time, the dogs and parrots proved an amazing degree of respect to Papaya Music's microphones and we managed to record Dr. Bombodee y otros pequeos desastres. Bombodee sounds like a somersault. It has no translation. It is a word Walter Ferguson used to hear a lot as a child in Cahuita, a small village that was isolated from the outside world until the 1980s. An old man used it to to say Don't do that, you're going roll in bombodee. Dr. Bombodee's desire is to serve his community but as soon as he draws out his scalpel, people panic and run away or call the police on him. Walter Ferguson is Doctor Bombodee, the village doctor, the one who heals any ailment with music. He's the one pant man who wonders around with his guitar recording absurd situations that happen to his neighbors. He's also the student who thinks he's made it because he learned how to spell G-O-O-D. The disasters this popular musician causes are nothing more than innocent jokes. Healthy humor that good doctors may recommend their patients for them to forget their maladies for a while.
