TOUCHING Here in the afternoon sun the leaves sway the clouds flow the shadows play the moments fly by the light is changing I stare at the sky I know you are listening for there must something inside you that you are feeling that wants to move that wants to let go that wants to be free for your inner voice cries to sing this is Touching For those who love dream-like flowing/soothing, picturesque and very melodic piano music this cd is for you! Mark Pinkus was born in Vancouver, British Columbia on the anniversary of Beethoven's death. At the age of 7 Mark began composing music on his yellow acoustic piano. His first composition came to him while looking out of his living room window: a black cat was balancing on the window ledge as a rainstorm was approaching. The inspiration for Mark's music comes from love, relationships, travel, moods and nature as well as from the varied experiences he had while living in Europe. The legendary CBC radio broadcaster Clyde Gilmour described Mark Pinkus's music as "Beautiful little stories without words".
