Details: This release follows the heels of Heatboxs critically acclaimed debut album Entertainment and provides further evidence of a promising and long-lived career for this young and extremely talented performer. Although making noises and sounds with his mouth since the age of ten, Heatbox hit the scene with Twin Cities-based funk, rock and blues group Root City Band. The group won several awards (including Best Blues Band of the Twin Cities in 2006) and Heatbox picked up a few of his own (1st place at the 2007 Yo The Music Minneapolis Beatbox Battle) before the two artists parted ways. Since then Heatbox has been writing new material, expanding his catalog of choice covers and performing to crowds throughout the country. Asked what its like to perform and tour as a solo act, Heatbox says I get to avoid so many of the negative things that happen in bands. Things like fighting, or drug abuse, or money problems and such. I never have to do anything other than exactly what I want to do in my art. I also have very little gear to carry around. On the other handthere is nothing like the feeling of really rockin out with your good friends. I miss that sometimes. Creating beats and building songs from the ground up, this band/producer/turntablist utilizes a voice modulator (sparingly) and a Boss LoopStation RC-50 to generate more sound than some full bands. When it comes to putting words to music, I get lyrics at the most random times, Heatbox says. They just kind of float into my head one or two sentences at a time. I write them all down and then try to use them to make a song that makes sense. This mans true passion is to entertain people, and with the rolling out of his second album Heatbox seems determined to embody what it is to be a one-man entertainment system.
