Details: Travis Terry is one of the leading Native American Flute players, and one of the most creative while remaining true to his roots. Travis studied music with Carlos Nakai and then went on to create his own style, markedly different from Carlos Nakai because it involves using the pure sound and notes of the Native Flute. Travis plays only hand-made cedar flutes, very much like they have been made for thousands of years. His music will take you on a journey of discovery through some of the most beautiful places on earth, places that Travis lives in, such as Canyon de Chelly, or visits frequently, such as Monument Valley, Antelope Canyon, the Colorado River, and many more.
