Contemporary Jazz and world music 12 MP3 Songs JAZZ: World Fusion, JAZZ: Jazz Fusion Details: 1994 saw the release of his fourth solo album Fluvius , which featured : Loy EHRLICH on keyboards and ethnic string instruments like hajouj and bolong, Henri AGNEL on guitar, mandolin and sarod Shamal MATRA on tablas and percussions. Didier played sopranino and soprano Saxophones, classical, piccolo and bamboo Flutes. Fluvius is a pastoral album that depicts the life and times of a river, and all the different places through which the river flows. This record completed a series on the elements : Bloom-earth, Fetish-fire, Zeff-air, Fluvius-water. With each solo album, Didier surprises the listener with newly discovered or mastered instruments and sounds, making every record unique to itself, filled with a fresh excitement and spirit of adventure. Didier Malherbe In the ambience of the freaky revolution in Paris in May 1968, he met Australian singer, guitarist and poet, ex-Soft Machine member, Daevid Allen with whom he was to create GONG. This international community band incubated in Deya, Mallorca, and toured France and Europe before it was taken on to the British scene starting at the first Glastonbury Festival in June 1971. Virgin Records signed them, and their album Camembert Electrique hit the charts.
