It also encourages them to experience learning in fun and exciting ways. LEARNING THROUGH HIP HOP educational series featuring The Hip Hop Professor and The Dream Team would be nothing without the team of extraordinary people behind the scenes. With its foundation firmly rooted in grassroots success, there is no mistake that this ensemble is represented by one of the most successful entertainment companies in Los Angeles, California - Releve Entertainment, founded by CEO Holly Carter. Releve Entertainment has become a force in the industry, with such notable clients as: Usher, Master "P", Lil' Romeo, Lisa Raye (All of Us), gospel sensations Donnie McClurkin and Fred Hammond to name a few. Carter is a strategist for bridging personalities from every genre of entertainment. With her desire to create opportunities for the urban voice, LEARNING THROUGH HIP HOP educational series is already staking its claim. THE BEGINNING: 2003 - Marcus Carter (PK), CEO of Dungee Music, saw a need for a more contemporary style of learning. Soon, the Hip Hop Professor, a 30's something with style, knowledge and flow was created. Not only did Carter captivate an audience hungry for something fresh and innovative in the world of hip-hop, but kids began to enjoy learning. Being the mastermind behind such notable musical scores as: Soul Food (Season four), Steve Harvey's "BIG TIME" theme song and Lil' Romeo's "The Girlies", Carter had the perfect recipe: a hot hip-hop track, the vocals of Writer/Singer Kaymun Beck and the subject matters. Not long after, a new flavor to the Alphabet, States and Capitals and other educational wonders began to stew. Carter was even able to test the waters of his new learning techniques during its infancy stage with local elementary schools. The success was insurmountable. But there was something missing. The Hip Hop Professor was all alone. Until... 2004 - Carter joined efforts with Writer/Artist Ingrid M. E. Hicks who was able to lend a multiplicity of talent to the solo, including but not limited to her original characters, "The Dream Team" (Papaya, Ming, Ambrosia and Rusty) created in 1997. The Dream Team was the perfect accompaniment to the Hip Hop Professor - youthful, edgy, quirky and ready to share knowledge with their peers. 2005 - Carter and Hicks opened the doors of LEARNING THROUGH HIP HOP to Writer/Producer Adriane Hopper - Supervising Producer of NBC's Emmy Award winning daytime reality show "Starting Over". With Hopper's multiplicity of talents and resources coupled with Carter Hicks' pre-existing creation, LEARNING THROUGH HIP HOP is taking the world by storm.
