Farmer, Philanthropist Musician is a compilation of songs from numerous albums released up until 1997. Reviews: "A fabulous overview of achievements that have put him in the top ranks of this country's folk and roots artists." - Peter North, Edmonton Journal "Destined for a lot of repeated listening...Bourne's trademark bluesy, soulful wailing vocals shine throughout this fine collection of songs." - Rogue Folk Review "The art of Bourne's music lies in his ability to convey spiritual values through intelligent and thoughtful lyrics buoyed by contagious rhythms and infectious melodies...Farmer, Philanthropist Musician is a fine introduction to this gifted Canadian original." - Robert Reid, Kitchener Waterloo Record "Absolutely fabulous!" - Juergen Kramer, Radio ZuSa, Germany "Bourne is always witty, engaging and very musical. Great stuff." - Mike Regenstreif, Sing Out! "Fabulous stuff!" - Jon Colcord, WNEC, New Hampshire "With a simplicity and skill that comes from years in the game, you find in Farmer, Philanthropist Musician everything that is great about Canadian folk music - simple truths delivered with skill and emotional commitment." - Brent Mason, New Brunswick Telegraph "I just kept replaying it!" - Frank Gosar, KLCC Oregon

====="I always thought Bill Bourne should have starred with Gene Hackman and Clint Eastwood in 'The Unforgiven.' He's a goddamn movie star, I'd say, with that black top hat and card shark face. More importantly, he is a 'shining light' in the 'North American' Folk Roots scene. He sings, plays guitar and writes with deep soul, and on the current musical landscape these talents constitute a revolutionary act of ART. Listen to Bill Bourne; get Religion, brother and sister. This is the real thing". Tom Russell El Paso, Texas
