There Is A Dark Side To Creating Audio Products That Many "Would Be" Success Stories Fall Into... Now, I know that you're probably thinking "A dark side? C'mon, we're just talking about creating audio products here!" so let me explain what I'm talking about... When many people create audio products or audio for their websites, they slap it together and forget a very important element... That element is music. I'm not talking about full songs or anything like that. What I'm referring to is opening and closing tracks that let people know they are dealing with a professional business. These are the same type of tracks you hear on audio products such as Personal Power by Anthony Robbins or Plimseur Language Learning CD's. If you don't have these you fall into the category of sounding... Homemade. The last thing that you want is for a customer or POTENTIAL customer to hear is an audio on your website or in your product that sounds like you recorded it in your bedroom. Don't get me wrong, you CAN record your audio at home just as I do but you MUST have the opening and closing tracks to add that professional, Hollywood flare to your audio projects.
