I wish I could say that from the moment I sat down to write the first time that I knew that this was a gift I was going to be given and a passion I was going to discover. I honestly just wasn't sure. But it was out of that first writing session that her first single, Small was born. Small was the spark that seemed to hint that there was maybe more in me to say than I had ever realized. It's the most amazing feeling to have written something inspired out of what I've gone through, then take that idea, send it out and have people relate on such a heart level that it brings them to tears.
