With a non-stop buzz developing in the Southeastern United States, Rockets To Ruin has made its mark on fans of this music, and the numbers are growing daily. The band was formed in Atlanta, GA by singer Cleveland Willis and guitarist Mike Grimmett. They soon met bassist Chris Taylor through a mutual friend. The minute I walked through the door and saw Mikes Les Paul/Mesa Boogie and heard him crank out some old school style KISS riffs, I knew this was the right band for me, states Chris. After several drummers had come and gone, they finally recruited friend Rob Hammersmith. Rob completed the line-up and Rockets To Ruin was complete and ready to fly fast. Rockets To Ruin continues with a busy live schedule throughout the Southeastern U.S., and the buzz is growing. This high-powered, guitar-driven rock n' roll band is set to inspire a defiant rock-deprived generation that is ready for a 360-spin from the mainstream corporate numbness currently dominating the nations airwaves.
