Authentic Mississippi Hill Country Juke Joint Blues 9 MP3 Songs BLUES: Delta Style, BLUES: Electric Blues Details: Eric Deaton moved from North Carolina to Mississippi straight out of high school and entered a higher education program of moonshine-fueled hill country blues at the world-renowned Junior Kimbrough's juke joint in the mid to late '90's. Apprenticing under the late trance-blues masters Junior Kimbrough and R.L. Burnside (and various other members of their extended families), Eric was thoroughly immersed in the North Mississippi blues tradition. He played, lived and toured with other Mississippi blues artists such as T-Model Ford, Paul 'Wine' Jones, and Big Bad Smitty. Eric's sound is firmly rooted in the electric juke joint style, with dashes of influence from early Funkadelic and a nod to the blues' West African roots. His first solo cd, Gonna Be Trouble Here, is not to be missed for fans of Mississippi juke joint blues.
