Innovative Jazz, Blues, World Music, R&B mixed with Social and Environmental Activism 8 MP3 Songs
WORLD: Reggae, JAZZ: Jazz Fusion Details: The Earthman Project (Earthman.tv) is a Miami/Nashville non profit organization using the power of music and the arts to inspire community action. We have gathered together incredible musicians, visual artists, web designers, videographers, photographers, writers and artists from other creative genres (adults, teens and gifted children) to deliver powerful messages. "Love Can Build Anything", is a powerful song used after several natural disasters across America, including Hurricane Andrew to lift the spirits of the community and power rebuilding efforts. The song is now being offered as a fundraiser for disaster response in the United States and the Caribbean after the devastating effects of the recent hurricanes. Proceeds, after minimum costs, are being donated to relief charities including the United Methodist Disaster Response and the American Red Cross Disaster Response. The Planet Earth Project Band (PEP), led by Earthman Lanny Smith, is the musical outreach of The Earthman Project. Led by award-winning songwriter and environmental activist Earthman Lanny Smith, PEP features an international mix of musicians including: Natasha Haynes, Siri Eversol, Lela Lombardo, Nathaniel Reed, Laster Wilson, Randy Singer, Claudio Spiewak, Jon Rose Ken Gustafson, Martin Farmer, Gaby Vivas, Magrus Borgus and Larry Marshall. The Miami Springs Elementary Children's Choir, led by Kentucky Parkis, has joined us in many major concerts. The Earthman Project in partnership with Government Environmental Agencies and Schools Systems has produced five very powerful environmental CD's being used in schools. We have also created PSA Radio Campaigns in English, Spanish, and Creole; PSA television campaigns in English and Spanish; and High School Environmental PSA Competitions. Our innovative Earthman The Planet Earth Project theatrical concerts have performed at more than 300 festivals and community events. Please check out our web music media and other outreaches at Earthman.tv.
