Details: Spitting Image's latex puppets burst onto UK screens in 1984; the show ran until 1996 and at its peak was watched by 15 million people. The viciously funny satirical show routinely cut Britain's politicians and celebrities down to size - no one was safe from the ridicule of creators Roger Law and Peter Fluck. The series was nominated for 10 BAFTA Awards, winning one in 1989. One of the show's most entertaining features was its songs, satirical comments on topical subjects. This unique compilation of nineteen songs is available for the first time. Searches:spitting image 20 golden gobs
