The Matrix 6 was one of the last few synthesizers from Oberheim to come out during the mid-eighties following the classic OB-series. The Matrix 6 utilized high-tech but less expensive digital and midi features and still retained a totally analog sound. It did this by using DCOs digitally controlled oscillators to provide stability programmability and more. All the Matrix synthesizers featured Matrix Modulation which allows for extremely wild virtual patching for almost unlimited range of sounds and modulation capabilities. The Matrix 6 is a very popular synthesizer today because it offers access to the legendary sounds and power of the Matrix 12 though not as meaty but at a fraction of the cost. The Matrix 6 is also like the Xpander but with only 6 voices of polyphony and slimmer programming. Each of its 6 voices has a pair of DCOs a low pass filter 2 VCA s 3 envelope generators 2 LFO s and 2 ramp gens for a variety of complex analog pads basses and sounds. For professional studio work or live on stage both the Matrix 6 keyboard and rack-mount are excellent and versatile synths that make a great source of bright and punchy sounds vintage analog pads textures and ambient sounds. It is used by Orbital Apollo 440 Jimmy Edgar Philip Glass The Grid Future Sound of London Astral Projection The Shamen Mouse on Mars Tangerine Dream and Cirrus. CONTAINS 257 WAV SAMPLES.
