Tenor Peter McCutcheon sings the music of Scotland, a subtle and feeling approach to the tender emotional content of an earlier era. 18 MP3 Songs FOLK: Traditional Folk, EASY LISTENING: Love Songs Details: Peter McCutcheon is one of Canada's finest lyric tenors. He began his musical career as the protégé of internationally acclaimed tenor Ben Heppner and is a student of renowned Canadian tenor Mark Dubois. Cast as Jinx by Stuart Ross in the original Toronto production of Forever Plaid, McCutcheon won critical acclaim onstage and played the role a total of 976 times. He went on to play Raoul in the Phantom of the Opera, Livent, Toronto; John Raoul Jr. in the world premiere production Jane Eyre, Mirvish Productions, Toronto; and Charlie Dalrymple in Brigadoon, Village Light Opera, New York. Comfortable singing Scottish, opera, classical and popular music, McCutcheon's singing style has garnered comparisons to Josh Groban and John McDermott. His voice, however, is uniquely his own, and he has been recognized for his subtle and feeling approach to singing the tender emotional content of an earlier era. (WholeNote Magazine). Peter is currently producing the third season of his own concert series. Sponsored by The Globe and Mail, Classical 96.3 FM, Air Canada and Hector Russell Scottish Imports, the Peter McCutcheon 2005/2006 Concert Series offers a wide diversity of music, including four concerts at the CBC's renowned Glenn Gould Studio in Toronto, and an exclusive Robert Burns event at the Toronto Cricket, Skating and Curling Club. "This young tenor's superb voice is the ideal vehicle to showcase the music of Scotland." - Denis Snowden, "A Little Breath of Scotland" AM 740 Toronto
