South Africas celebrated pop chanteuse Karma-Ann Swanepoel achieved national success in late 1996 with the release of her debut album Slap In The Face under the moniker Henry Ate at the tender age of 21. Two singles from that album occupied the top of South Africas radio charts. In May of 1997, the first single Just sailed all the way to 1, followed by the second single Hey Mister which rose to the 2 slot a few short months later in September of 1997. Success came like a tidal wave and the young waif-like beauty was swept into a fury of press and public adoration. Only working with the best players she could find, Karmas live shows possessed a certain magic and energy that drew sold out crowds everywhere she played. Henry Ate was quickly becoming a national institution. Henry Ate ended the year touring the continent with Skunk Anansie. In 1998 Karma released her second album under the name KARMA. The album was titled One Day Soon. Four consecutive singles from that album all entered the Top 10 Dr. Pepper, One Day Soon, Tuesday Afternoon and Seconds Count. Henry Ate went on tour that year with South Africas most popular artist, Johnny Clegg. The year was capped off when Karma won Pop Album Of The Year at South Africas SAMA awards (South African equivalent of the Grammy) for One Day Soon. Karma appeared on the covers of the S.A. editions of People Magazine, ELLE, Cosmo, The Sunday Times, the London edition of TNT and many other national magazines as well as articles in Billboard etc. KARMA was soon headlining every major music festival in South Africa, and toured with Garbage in 1999. In 2000, Henry Ate released their second (Karmas Third) album Torn And Tattered with top charted singles Madhatter, Shes Alright, Saints And Sinners and Prayer and was subsequently nominated for Album Of The Year. By this point, Henry Ate had grown to be South Africas most popular live act. Karma began producing other acts, writing songs for other artists, all the while compiling an impressive catalog of original songs. In 2001 Henry Ate toured with Melanie C, and played an international gig in London at the Empire in Shepherds Bush. Also in 2001, the Henry Ate song Just was voted the 1 song of all time in South Africa by Radio 5 FMs listening audience. 2002 saw the release of Henry Ate 96-02 The Singles which includes all of the top radio hits plus four new songs and is the last album of her contract with EMI in South Africa. August 2003 saw the release of KARMA Seven Songs through Karmas newly formed independent label AMP (Ate Music Productions). Both projects have been a huge success for Karma, with the album achieving 3 1 singles (And And And, 27 Years and I Found Out) in SA. In November 2003 Karma-Ann made the move to the USA. She started working as a solo artist under the name KARMA.
