Related styles: SPOKEN WORD: Poetry, COUNTRY: Traditional Country Details: JACK THOMPSON is one of Australias most loved and respected actors. He has appeared in numerous Australian and American feature films including Wake In Fright, Sunday Too Far Away, Breaker Morant and The Man From Snowy River. Additional film credits include, The Sum Of Us, Midnight In The Garden of Good and Evil, Star Wars: Episode II, The Assassination of Richard Nixon, The Good German, December Boys and Baz Luhrmanns Australia. His many television credits include A Woman Called Golda with Ingrid Bergman, Shadow In The Sun opposite Stephanie Powers and A Woman Of Independent Means opposite Sally Field. He currently hosts the highly successful television series Finding Your Family on the Seven Network. Jack is a Goodwill Ambassador for U.N.H.C.R, a founding member of the Council for the National Museum of Australia and a life member of Stockmans Hall of Fame. Jack Thompson was awarded an AM, Member in the General Division of the Order of Australia, for his services to the Australian film industry. Born and bred in Manly, NSW, his father, John Thompson was a poet and broadcaster too. Jack went to the Northern Territory to work as a stockman when he was a teenager. It was there that he fell in love with the Australian bush and came to truly understand the poems of Banjo Paterson that he first learned as a schoolboy. Jack is now busier than ever. He has a vibrant career as an internationally renowned actor, a pub in the Blue Mountains of New South Wales, and a charity foundation that provides funds for building projects by Indigenous Australians. Jack and Banjo share a love of the Australian bush and the Australian character. In making a recording of Banjos poems Jack hopes they will bring Banjos fine, innocent, whimsical creations into the lives of many others, and introduce a new generation to the wisdom, the values and the humour that form one of the foundations of the Australian character. JACK THOMPSON: The Bush Poems of A.B. Banjo Paterson is available from all good stores in early December or for download or direct purchase from us at finepoets.com The Banjo Paterson CD was recorded at Philmsound in Lindfield in Sydney by Phil Judd, Australia's most experienced film mixer. He's worked with all the top directors, like Peter Weir. Chris Noonan and Phil Noyce. You can find out more about him on the Filmsound website: filmsound.com.au The design artwork for the CD was done by Shinta Prasethyo at Wideopen Media in Sydney. Wideopen have worked with Binnaburra Films on film posters and publicity brochures since the early 1980's. All the great movie posters were designed by Anthony Wyld. You can see more of their work on the Wideopen website: wideopen.net.au Filming of the original recording session was done by cinematographer Kim Batterham, well known for his work on the landmark documentary series The First Australians, and the excerpt that appears on You Tube was edited by Scott Walmsley, a final year student at the Australian Film Television and Radio School.
