That show, of course, is the now-famous weekly romp by The Time Jumpers, a band of A-list musicians, that takes place every Monday night at Nashvilles legendary Station Inn. Jumpin Time the title of both the 2-disc CD and the 2-hour DVD is now available at thetimejumpers.com, iTunes, amazon, cdbaby, and at selected record stores. This amazing collection of performances garnered The Time Jumpers two Grammy nominations (Best Country Performance by a Duo or Group with Vocals for Sweet Memories and Best Country Instrumental Performance for Fidoodlin ), numerous guest appearances on The Grand Ole Opry, and a public television special airing on more than 125 stations that earned two Regional Emmy Awards for both production and video editing. Started as a jam session in which off-the-road and off-the-clock pros got together to unwind by playing their favorite kinds of songs, the performances were scheduled for the clubs slowest night of the week, a time when only the most hardcore and appreciative fans were likely to show up. If nobody came, that was OK, too, because the pickers and singers were quite content to play for each others entertainment. At first, only the critics went wild about the show. Then, as word spread, some very famous folk began dropping in. Reba McEntire was so excited on her first visit that she joined the band to belt out some Bob Wills tunes. Vince Gill often sits in. Following one of her concerts, Bonnie Raitt came by with her band and listened in awe as the Time Jumpers breezed through an unforgettable program of Western swing, jazz, country, pop and cowboy classics. Recently, rock icon Robert Plant even pulled up a chair. All seasoned touring and studio musicians, the Time Jumpers include bassist Dennis Crouch; acoustic rhythm guitarist and lead vocalist Ranger Doug Green (of Riders in the Sky); fiddlers Aubrey Haynie, Kenny Sears and Joe Spivey; pedal steel guitarist and newest Time Jumper Paul Franklin

(superbly filling the void left by the death of Papa John Hughey); lead electric guitarist Andy Reiss; accordionist Jeff Taylor; drummer Rick Vanaugh; and lead vocalists Dawn Sears and Carolyn Martin. On any given Monday, fans might find themselves rubbing shoulders with the likes of Jimmy Buffet, Rhonda Vincent, Ronnie Dunn, American Idols Jordin Sparks, Delbert McClinton, Pam Tillis, Sonya Isaacs, Mel Tillis, Sheryl Crow, Lee Ann Womack, Jimmy C. Newman, and Linda Davis. Nashville execs Tony Brown, Buddy Cannon and Mac McAnally; and legendary musicians Tommy Allsup, Charlie McCoy, Ray Edenton, Bob Moore, all of whom have been there to cheer the Time Jumpers on. The DVD and CD each features 26 songs and was filmed and recorded live at the Station Inn on a Monday night in May. The selections include Stompin At The Station, Honeysuckle Rose, Sugar Moon, Write Myself A Letter, Along The Navajo Trail, Its All Your Fault, Pig Dog Hop, Leavin And Sayin Goodbye, Blues For Dixie, Fidoodlin, Bring It On Down To My House, Route 66 and Smile. Also featured are, Roly Poly, South Of The Border, Jumpin Time, Bonapartes Retreat, My Confession, Give Me A Pinto Pal, Embraceable You, Cherokee Maiden, My Weakness Is Too Strong, All Of Me, Caravan, Sweet Memories, and My Window Faces The South. Among the composers represented in this musical treasury are Bob Wills, Cindy Walker, Fats Waller, Grand Ole Opry star Jeannie Seely, Bobby Troup, Charlie Chaplin, Fred Rose, Pee Wee King, George and Ira Gershwin, Mickey Newbury and Duke Ellington. Three of the instrumentals were composed by Time Jumpers members. In addition to containing complete performances of 26 songs, the Jumpin Time DVD includes revealing and insightful commentaries from all the band members, as well as remarks from Vince Gill, Rhonda Vincent, Jeannie Seely, Sonya Isaacs, and Linda Davis. The CD artwork includes the lyrics to all the songs as well as who performed which solo. The concert was shot in front of a live audience and conveys the warmth and intimacy of an evening at the Station Inn, right down to the ringing of the ships bell near the bar to honor particularly stunning performances. Jumpin Time was executive produced by Terry Choate for The Crosswind Corporation. Matt Coale directed the DVD. Dennis Ritchie recorded and mixed the amazing audio and Bradford Van Demark at BlueSky Filmworks is responsible for the stunning video editing. The Time Jumpers created all the musical arrangements. The Time Jumpers are Nashville's best kept musical secret, but the word is spreading about what many of Nashville's recording artists, musicians, and industry executives have already discovered on Monday nights at The Station Inn. About ten years ago, a few of Nashville's studio musicians and vocalists made a deliberate decision to get together on stage one night a week just to have some fun playing their music of choice, and calling it their "therapy session". The venue chosen was the world famous Station Inn and before long the band grew and so did their audiences. The group now consists of 11 of the most talented pickers and singers you'll ever have the pleasure to hear. The Time Jumpers have reinvented Western Swing - bringing it into the 21st century with more power, energy, and downright fun than you've ever seen and heard. Armed with their infectious arrangements, amazing musicianship, and engaging personalities, The Time Jumpers have been Nashville's best kept musical secret....but the word is out!!
