He is primarily a rock guitarist though he draws inspiration from a variety of musical sources and as a result has developed into an extremely versatile player with a distinctly eclectic style of writing music. Guitar wise his greatest influences, guitar wise, have been Jimi Hendrix, Joe Satriani, Steve Vai, Richie Kotzen, Steve Morse, and Jeff Beck. But he also has a love of more mainstream artists and quality pop bands from the past and present embracing a huge variety of styles and genres. When he first picked up the guitar as a teenager his intention was to play in a band as soon as he could and write as many songs as he could. He embarked on a journey of self tuition and experimentation that proved to be a valuable foundation in song writing ability and creative intuition. He has spent many years working on the London pub and club circuit performing in a variety of live acts including Too Many Words, No Idea, What About Us? and Funky Fluid. It was around this time he found himself performing along side prestigious musicians such as Darrin Mooney, who currently plays with both Gary Moore and Primal Scream, and Simon Hansen of Death in Vegas. He then spent a year in Australia where he worked as part of the highly successful Queensland based band Club Crunch. Now based in Hampshire, England he earns his living by managing a hectic teaching schedule, working as a session guitarist and performing his own songs with his band. He is currently working on new material which highlights his impressive vocal capabilities as well as his guitar playing skills. Check out his website for updates - lachlanhorne.com
