Bill Bressler is a composer, sound designer, and producer whose versatility and unique sound palette are recognizable across television and radio. As a keyboard player and programmer, he is most comfortable with a vast array of analog, vintage, and virtual instruments. Using them to their maximum potential, Bill can adapt his composing skills to virtually any genre of music. Bill's fascination with music began at a very early age. When he received his first synthesizer for his 13th birthday, he immediately began trying to emulate pop music's sounds of the day in both performance and timbre. Bill has composed one of New York City's most well known radio jingles for Duane Reade Pharmacy ("Anything You Need"), as well as original scores and sound design for TV ads for the Food Network, HGTV, KCBS Los Angeles, AT&T, Pepsi, and more.
