The new CD from George and Julius and friends. 19 MP3 Songs FOLK: Political, FOLK: Modern Folk Details: Folk, Labor Musicians Unite for Third Anti-Bush CD Hail to the Thieves, Volume III: Songs to Take Our Country Back! is a rousing call to action from the likes of Billy Bragg, Anne Feeney, Utah Phillips and folk musicians across the country. This new CD lays out the case against George Bush and his cronies with 20 songs, poems and stories in the best of the traveling, storytelling folk tradition. Also featured are Chuck Brodsky, Steve Brooks, The DC Labor Chorus, Graham and Barbara Dean, Jon Fromer, the group Girlyman, Evan Greer, Francisco Herrera, Colleen Kattau, John Lilly, Jolie Rickman, and Pat Wynne. The project is the third compilation CD by George Mann and Julius Margolin, who contribute four songs to the album. Mann produced the new CD from more than 60 songs submitted by songwriters from around the country. I found a number of new artists, from among many great singers and songwriters, with incredibly powerful songs, Mann said. The songs tackle current issues from gay marriage to environmental racism and the disaster of George Bush's war in Iraq. We're happy to be working with artists who use their music as a tool to raise awareness and build a sustainable movement for justice and peace. The artists are all working activists and represent many regions of the United States. Pittsburgh's Anne Feeney, on the road more than nine months a year, believes People are so sick of bickering network talking heads that they don't want to think anymore. These songs will inspire thought, conversation and maybe even some spontaneous or concerted hellraising. Joining them is British folk legend Billy Bragg, who contributed his Bush War Blues to the album. Celebrated storyteller and songwriter Utah Phillips, who contributes a new piece entitled Ship Gonna Sail, is encouraged by the artistic output in opposition to the Bush administration. There never was a time when our people have created more songs of social protest, Phillips said. There never was a time when they were more needed. This CD is just the tip of the iceberg. This is not your typical record
