As a young man, he drank in the sounds of Dr. John, Earl King and second-line street parades behind the Rebirth Brass Band. In '97, he traveled to Massachusetts and Northern California to learn the luthier's craft and immersed himself in the traditions of American Acoustic music, yet never abandoned his love for blues, Southern melodic rock and funk. In 2000, these varied influences found expression in the band Sol Fiya. Combining the powerful, creative drumming of Lee Sammons, the melodic Bass of Thomas McDonald, Chris Mule's guitar virtuosity and awesome B3 chops of Michael Burkhardt, the band's fresh yet familiar sound created an instant buzz in New Orleans and beyond. While many may be familiar with Boone's writing and recording work with artist such as Anders Osborne and Big Chief Monk Boudreaux, the sound of Sol Fiya takes off to higher heights. Now, with the band's new CD "Heaven She Rides", produced by Pepper Keenan (of Corrosion of Conformity and DOWN), audiences everywhere have a chance to discover the irresistible magic of Sol Fiya.
