KamaNandi believes that the use of Bamboo Flute music for spiritual development can set one on a path to a better life. While listening to this kind of music, you may discover your power to listen and your ability to resonate with your self and with nature. The Bamboo Flute can be a healing medicine; an ancient instrument that captivates many who cross its path. Hidden in its simplicity is profound possibility. The windy, resonant sound of the Bamboo Flute can also bring deep serenity to sympathetic ears. In Japan the flute has had a long association with Zen Buddhism. The idea is to use the flute in meditation to achieve total spontaneity, a release from normal conscious thought. When played in a natural setting it sounds very much like it belongs there. As KamaNandi often likes to say "Nothing exists ... everything is becoming... KamaNandis goal with this music is to bring a taste of meditation to the listener. Indian sages have often said that unless music is able to bring inner silence, some meditation to the listener, youre not making music, youre making noise. "When in the Yoga of holy contemplation, the movements of the mind and of the breath of life are in a harmony of peace, there is steadiness, and that steadiness is pure."

Bhagavad Gita 18-33 KamaNandi can currently be seen performing his Bamboo Flute music in select South Florida locations. A frequent traveler he currently lives in Miami, Florida with his daughter Paulina and their three cats, Prince, Harry, and Kwai Chang Caine.
