If you are one of the winners you will be contacted via e-mail. Good luck! 5/14/06 Congratulations to Alice Harris of North Carolina. She is the first winner of a Cherokee river cane flute! Native American Times 3/6/2006 A Cherokee Nation man did not go home empty-handed after being nominated multiple times in a statewide music contest. Jay Red Eagle won both Native American Artist of the Year and Flute Player of the Year. The Stillwater-based Payne County Line Promotions sponsored the contest. Officials say the awards are an annual event. Artists must receive a number of votes to even be nominated, with winners determined through online polling. Red Eagle's music has been described as a traditional, yet contemporary blend of flute, drums, percussion and vocals, pulling your senses into the world of the American Indian, their history of living in a balanced harmony with the earth, nature and the spiritual world.
