Smart, spunky, lush pop 1 MP3 Songs POP: Beatles-pop, ROCK: Modern Rock Details: Who is this Midway Joe and who are THE BADINOVS anyway ? When Jake Mauer asked his friend Pat Olberding (aka Patrick Olberov) and his band The Badinovs to write a theme song for his son Joe, one member of the band replied Joe who?. The first thing Mike Nilles (aka Nicco Badinov), who has always been one to give nicknames to everyone he meets, thought of was, what can we call this kid? So, thinking back to famous Joes in sports history, the first character that came to mind was Broadway Joe Namath. Broadway, the districtMidway, the working class St Paul neighborhood where Joe and generations of Mauers call home- of course, it just made sense. This kid was going to go down in history too! Midway Joe was every mothers son, a good kid, an honest athlete and a real wunderkind. The song had to be as sweet as his swing, as memorable as his sideburns, and as fun as his boyish grin. Pat, a long-time family friend, had helped coach this phenom from the time Joe was tripping over his own shoelaces, so he knew exactly what to say in the lyrics. Nicco had a melody in mind for a folky type of tune that rocked a bit- just like Joes bat. Together with comrades Jeffry Beckerov (Jeff Becker) on drums and David Nussinov (Dave Nussbaum) on keyboards, The Badinovs are pleased to present to all in Twins Territory our ode to Midway Joe. So, grab some pine tar, and give this tune a ride. Its another Joe Mauer hit!
